

Tak

TOURIST INFORMATION

Trekking in Tak Province

EXOTIC
Thailand

Introduction

Tak is a northern province covering an area of 16,406 largely mountainous square kilometres. The provincial capital is 426 kilometres north of Bangkok, and is a gateway to Myanmar to the west, and the northern Thai cities of Lampang and Chiang Mai.

City Attractions

King Taksin the Great Shrine

Located near the Tak TAT office, this statue of Tak's most famous native son (1734-1782) is the site of an annual fair from December 28 until January 3. King Taksin was the Thai monarch who expelled the Burmese from Thailand after the 1767 destruction of Ayutthaya as the Thai capital.

Mani Banphot Swamp

This scenic, extensive area within the heart of Tak city is located near Wat Mani Banphot on Paholyothin Highway. Inside the temple, a Chiang Saen Buddha image dating from the late 1200s is enshrined.

Khao Tham

Located in Tambon Mai Ngam, this 71-metre rocky hill-ock, near Paholyothin Highway, contains replicas of the Lord Buddha's Footprint on the summit. Tak residents pay homage throughout the year, most particularly during Songkran, which marks the traditional Thai New Year each April 13.

Out-of-City Attractions

Wat Phra Boromthat & Ancient Tak City

This monastery, located 25 kilometres upstream, in Amphoe Ban Tak, in an area which used to be the former site of Tak city. There are several ruins in the area, including a hilltop pagoda which was constructed, according to legend, by King Ramkhamhaeng of Sukhothai (reign: 1275-1317) to commemorate his victory in single combat on elephant back against King Khun Sam Chon, the ruler of Muang Shot (currently Amphoe Mae Sot).

Bhumibol Dam

Thailand's largest dam is located some .. kilometres north of Tak city in Amphoe Sam Ngao, and dams the Mae Ping River. The extensive reservoir forms a picturesque lake that extends northwards to Chiang Mai's Amphoe Hot. Accommodation is available at the dam. Contact the Electricity Generating Authority of Thailand at (Bangkok) 436-3179 or 424-0101 for further details.

Mae Ping Lake Cruises

Popular cruises originate from the Bhumibol Dam to Chiang Mai's Doi Tao Self-Help Settlement edging the dam reservoir, a total distance of 140 kilometres. Full details may be obtained from the Educational Tour Centre, Tel: (Bangkok) 221-5183, or the Thongnatee Company Limited, Tel: 457-3428, 467-2557.

lows and camp sites, is available. Contact the National Park Division of the Royal Forestry Department in Bangkok, Tel: 579-0529 or 579-4842 for further details.

Doi Musur Hilltribe Development & Welfare Centre

Located on the road to Lan Sang Waterfall, the area is one in which Lahu, Lissu and Meo hilltribes reside. Hilltribe products are for sale at Km 29 on the Tak-Mae Sot Highway.

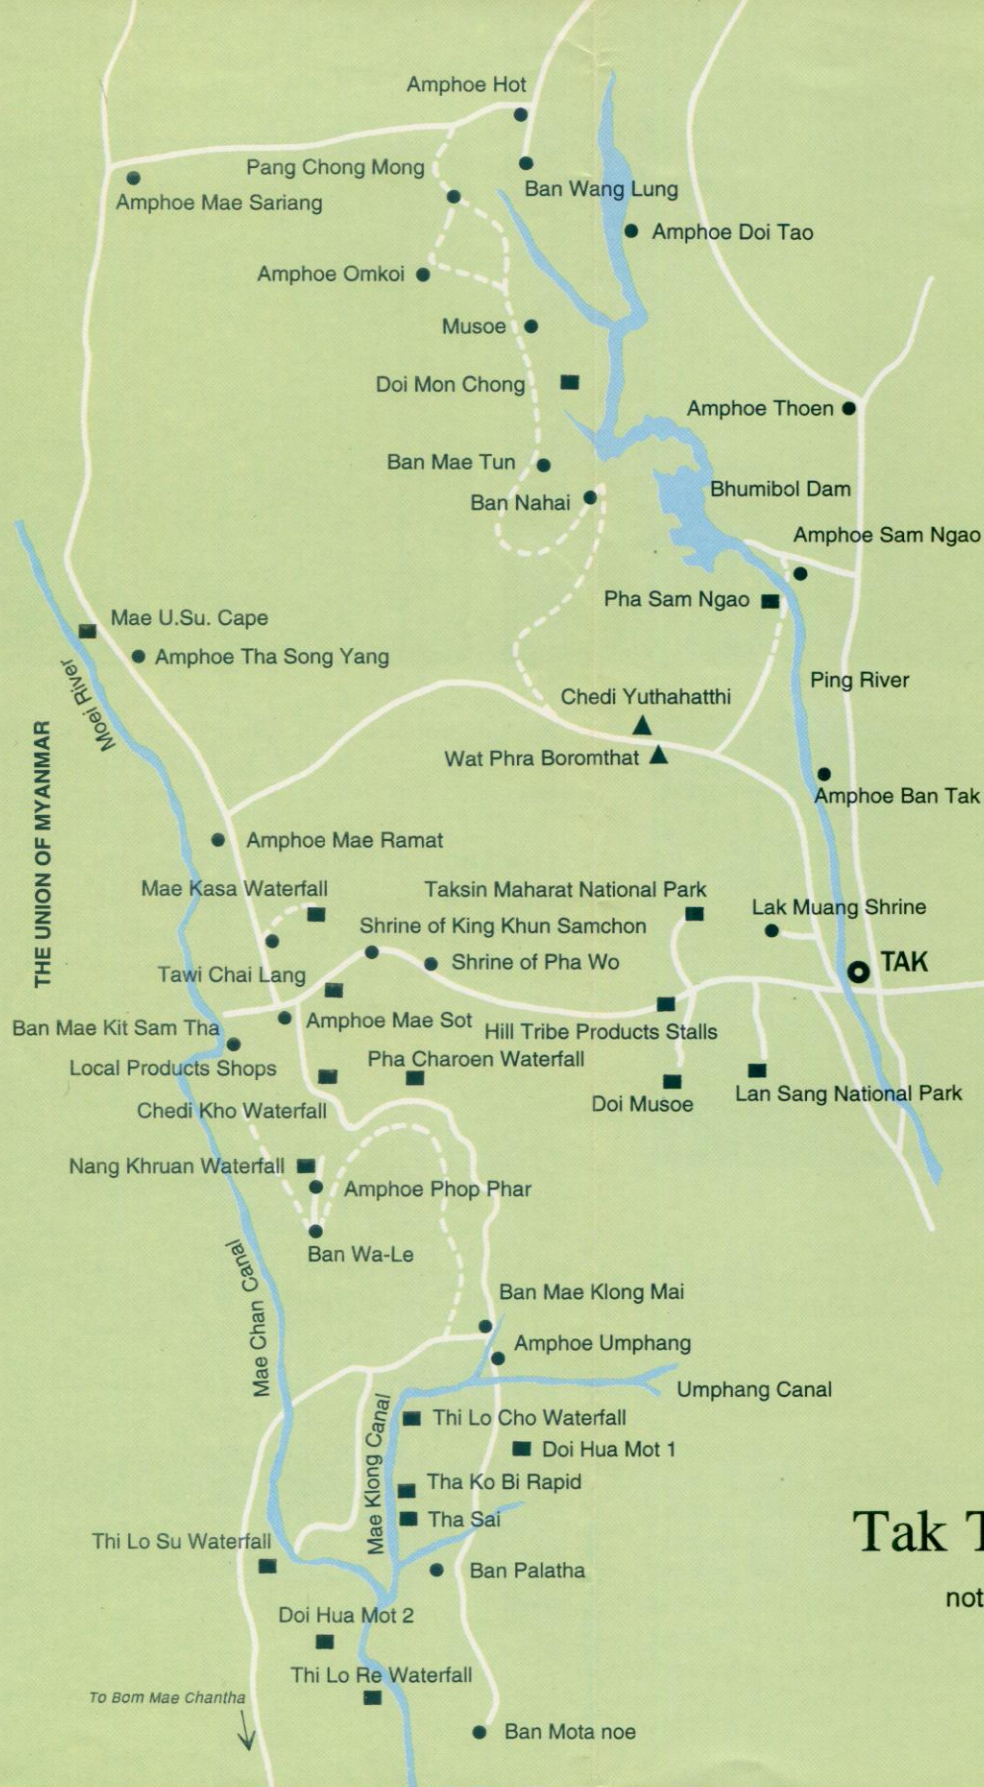

Lan Sang National Park

Located on the Tak-Mae Sot Highway (Route 105), 17 kilometres from Tak city, and accessed by a 3-kilometre road, the park contains the scenic Lang Sang and Pha Phung waterfalls. Accommodation is available. Contact the National Park Division of the Royal Forestry Department in Bangkok, Tel: 579-0529 or 579-4842 for further details.

Taksin Maharat National Park

Originally named Krabak Yai National Park, after the name of Thailand's biggest tree, this 37,250-acre national park is located 2 kilometres off the Tak-Mae Sot Highway, some 26 kilometres from Tak city. The mountainous area has several scenic viewpoints, evergreen forest, waterfalls and streams. Accommodation, primarily in the form of bunga-

Clockwise from Top Left:
*the King Taksin the Great shrine, the ancient pagoda of Wat Phra Boromthat, the scenic mountain-fringed Bhumibol
Dam reservoir, one of Lan Sang National Park's waterfalls, the scenic Taksin Maharat National Park, site of Thailand's largest tree, and the provincial capital's major recreation area, the Mani
Banphot Swamp*

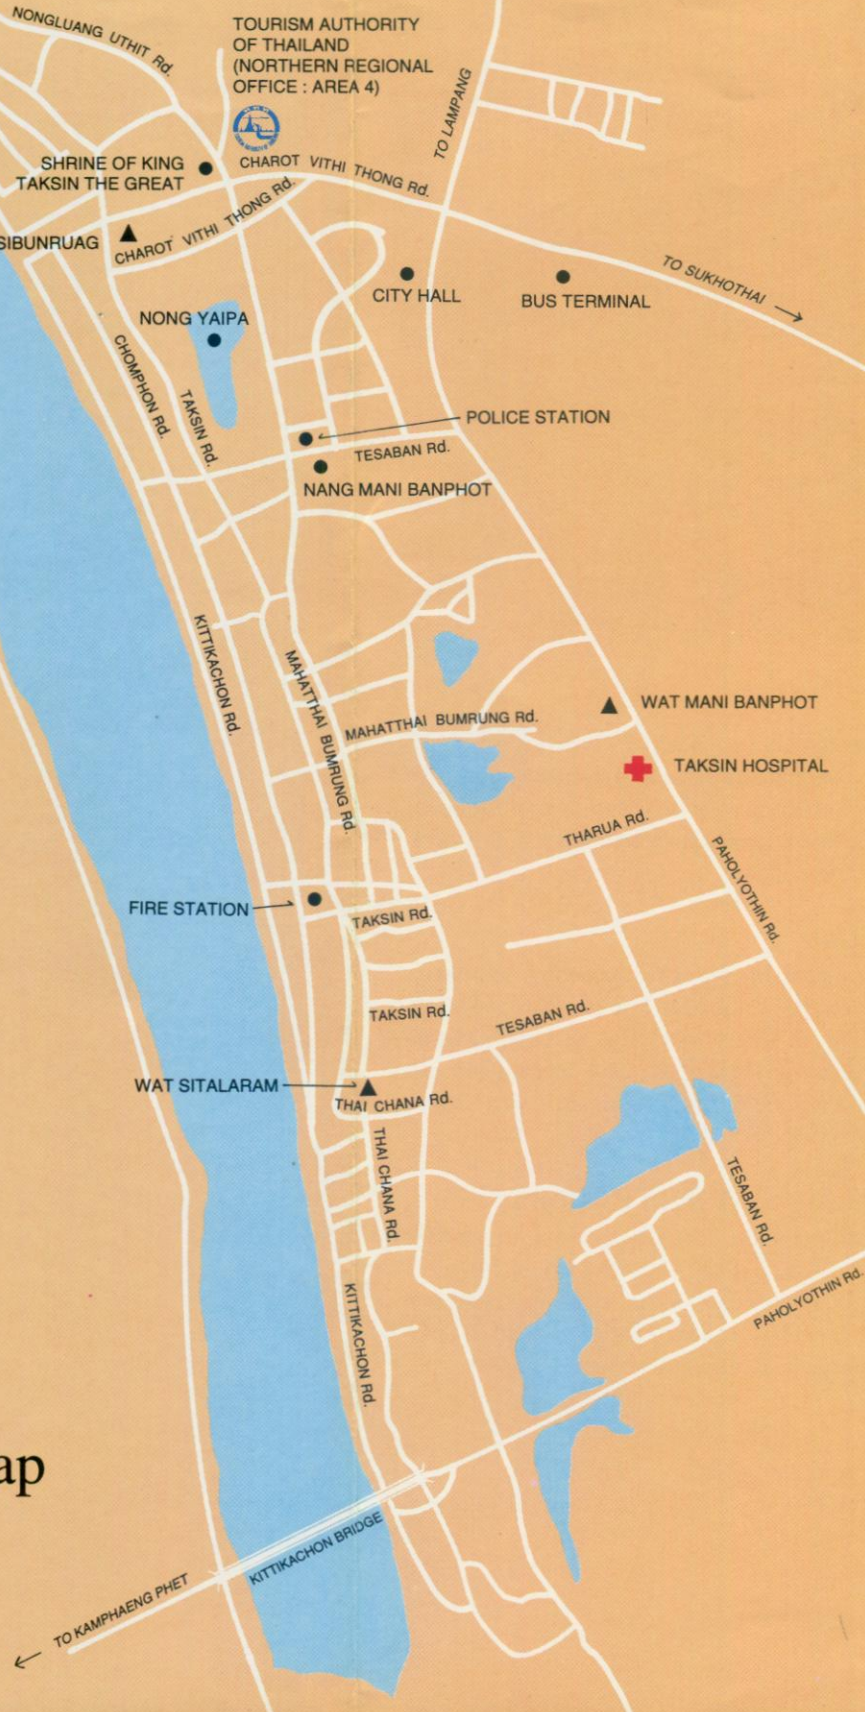

Tak Tourist Map

not drawn to scale

Tak City Map

not drawn to scale

Mae Sot

This riverside settlement on the Moei River, facing Myanmar (Burma) on the opposite bank, and some 86 kilometres from Tak city, is well known for its shopping opportunities, especially for Burmese goods such as cloth lengths, gemstones and decorative items.

Tham Mae Usu

This cave, boasting notably beautiful stalactites and stalagmites, is located on the scenic Mae Sot-Mae Sariang Highway (Route 1085), at Km. 95-96. It is necessary to ford the Mae Usa stream in front of the cave to gain access. This may not be possible during the annual Rains Season (July through October).

Doi Mae Ramoeng & Mon Krathing

Doi Mae Ramoeng is some 130 kilometres north of Mae Sot on the Mae Sot-Mae Sariang Highway. Mountain scenery is particularly spectacular in the morning when mist swirls through the peaks. The area is rich in wildlife, particularly deer species and numerous types of birds.

Amphoe Umphang

Amphoe Umphang is 164 kilometres south of Mae Sot on Highway 1090. The scenic highway's highest point is some 1200 metres above sea level. The winding route takes some 4 hours to complete, particularly during the Rains Season or the Cool Season when mountain mists impede progress.

Thi Lo Su Waterfall

This spectacular waterfall is located in the Umphang Wildlife Sanctuary and can be visited only from November through May. Would-be visitors to the waterfall and wildlife sanctuary are recommended to enquire first with the TAT office in Tak (Tel: (055) 514-341-3) for information regarding travel conditions and camping opportunities.

Left to Right

The border town of Mae Sot is a favourite place for purchasing Burmese handicrafts; the spectacular Thi Lo Su Waterfall in Umphang Wildlife Sasnctuary misty mountain scenery on the Thai-Burmese border

Overleaf:

Tak's annual Loi Krathong Sai festival and a hilltribe village in northern Tak

How To Get There

By Car

The 5-6 hour road journey by car from Bangkok is made via Sing Buri, Chai Nat and Nakhon Sawan. The distance is 426 kilometres.

By Bus

Airconditioned coaches and non-air buses leave Bangkok's Northern Bus Terminal throughout the day. Please contact Bangkok 279-4484-7 (air) and 271-0101-5 (non-air) for further details.

Shopping & Souvenirs

Popular local souvenirs include mangoes and bananas preserved in honey, tamarind, and decorative granite items. Mae Sot is a good place to purchase Burmese products, including silverware, lacquerware, rubies and other gemstones.

Special Events

Loi Krathong Sai

Loi Krathong, Thailand's lovely annual 'Festival of Lights', on the full moon night in November, is celebrated in a unique manner in Tak. Local people thread together their krathongs which are launched simultaneously and appear as lighted necklaces on the Ping River.

Taksin Maharachanusorn Fair

Celebrated annually from December 28-January 3 at the Taksin Shrine and provincial sports field, the fair features religious ceremonial and processions, displays and nightly folk entertainment.

Tourism Authority of Thailand

Head Office

4 Ratchadamnoen Nok Avenue
Bangkok 10100, Thailand
Tel: (66 2) 281-0422 (20 lines)
Fax: (66 2) 224-6221

Accommodation

A comprehensive list of airconditioned and non-airconditioned accommodation, and restaurants, in Tak can be obtained from the local Tourism Authority of Thailand office on Taksin Road. The office is open seven days a week, throughout the year, from 8.30 AM until 4.30 PM.

Tak Office

193 Taksin Road
Tak 63000
Tel: (055) 514-341-3
Fax: (66-55) 514-344